FE AND HUBBY CHUMS.

Wear Same Kind of Clothes and Smoke Same Kind of Cigarettes.

St. Louis, Jan. 27.—The woman in St. Louis who just as her husband men's clothing. The have their clothes by the same tailor, they their neckties from same lot, they smoke same brand of cigarettes, they drink at the bar together and split a bottle of beer, they play match games of billiards and they are always together on the street and off.

The woman has been doing this here and elsewhere for three years, and not one of the thousands of person they have met in that time has ever suspected that she was a woman.

To the public she is Gus Seib and he is Prince Gallano, but in private life they are Mr. and Mrs. Sidenberg.

The pair are staying at the Billings Hotel. Mrs. Gallano was given a great deal of notice over the country three years ago when it was discovered in New York through an accident on a street car, that for nine years she had been wearing men's clothing and working as a man. Again she came into public notice when it was learned that she was one of the many wives of

After Office.

He James has announced Ben Johnson, and in view of this fact the representative of Madison county, which is sure to be a Democrat will not support him for Senator. The people of Madison will demand that each candidate for the nomination pledge himself to vote against this greatly overrated politician.—Richmond Married at Sight.

Goldfield, Nev., Jan. 27.—Lured to Nevada by a resident of Beatty, who, is said, was already married, warned by intuition that all was not as it should be, fleeing to Goldfield for safety, arrested on arriving and freed by a sympathetic Sheriff, and married to a Goldfield pioneer whom she had captivated.

Such was the experience of Grace Holland, a pretty Cincinnati girl during the last eight days.

Lebanon, O.—Claiming to be his own grandfather and a brother to his own son, Richard Connell arrived here to spend several weeks with friends. He his strange relationships. "You see, I met a young widow in Iowa by the name of Sarah Minor, and we were married. She had a stepdaughter. Then my father met our stepdaughter and married her. That made my wife the mother-in-law of my father-in-law, and made my stepdaughter my stepmother and my father became my stepson.

"Then my stepmother, the stepdaughter of my wife, had a son. That boy was of course, my half-brother, because he was my father's son, but he was also the son of my wife's stepdaughter, and therefore her grandson. That made me grandfather of my stepbrother.

"Then my wife had a son. My mother-in-law, the step-sister of my son, is also his grandmother, because he is her stepson's child. My father is the brother-in-law of my child, because his step-sister is his wife. I am the brother of my own son, who is also the child of my grandmother. I am the brother of my own son, who is also the child of my grandmother. I am my mother's brother-in-law, my wife is her own child's aunt, my son is my father's nephew, and I'm my own grandfather. So there you are."

How Editors Get Rich

It is not good policy to give business secrets away, but as many people wonder how editors get rich so quick, we give out the following information, hoping that every one of our readers will not take advantage of this and engage in the newspaper business.

"Ganderbone's Fort," located at St. Louis, offers to furnish a lot of poetry and other silly stuff, if we will only run an advertisement each week.

A fellow out West wants us to run a lot of advertising for him for nothing, and if it brings results, he may become a customer. A gun firm wants us to run $19 worth of advertising and then send them $10 in exchange for a shot gun. Such a gun would retail at about $6. For running $17 worth of local we can get a magazine telling us how to do dressmaking at home. By running $50 worth of advertising and sending $25 to an Atlantic City firm we will be given a deed to a lot. When the tide is in, the lot stands six feet under water.

If we run a column write up of a dog to be held in North Dakota this fall, amounting to about $7, we will be sent two $1 tickets. Our railroad fare up there and back for two, would be about $60. We can have almost any Chicago daily paper sent us free. The subscription price is $4, all we have to do is to run $36 worth of locals.

For $40 worth of advertising and $25 cash we can own a bicycle. The wheel sell at just $12. About one dozen firms are wanting to give us a share in gold mines for advertising. A nursery firm will send us a twenty-five cents rose bush for only $5 worth of advertising. For running a six inch advertisement for a year we can get a gross of pills.

Hair That Won a Fortune.

Some months ago an elderly, eccentric citizen of Memphis, named Anthony Bowling, died his determination to see his entire fortune to the under sixteen years of age in the city of Memphis. His red hair most nearly matched a lock that had belonged to his dead wife. Forty-three children competed in this unique contest for an inheritance and when it was announced that Eunice Cleve's hair most nearly matched that of the late Mrs. Bowling, speculation was rife as to whether the old man would actually make her his heiress. This he did, and it is said she now inherits some $7,000 per annum.—The Auxiliary.

Wool made of Limestone.

Wool not the product of sheep is being utilized abroad for the making of men's clothing. This is known as "limestone wool" and is made in an electric furnace. Powdered limestone mixed with certain chemicals is thrown into the furnace and after passing through a furious air blast it is tossed out as fluffy white wool. When it comes from the furnace the wool is dyed and made into lengths like cloth. A pair of trousers or a coat made of this material cannot, it is claimed, be burned or damaged by grease and is as flexible as cloth made of sheep's wool.—Auxiliary.

Uncle Sams Material Wealth.

Two hundred and ninety-nine years ago this month on the cold, bleak shores of Cape Cod Bay, Mass. the intrepid little band of passengers who reverently disembarked there from the Mayflower two months before were battling against the pangs of hunger and tormented by the menace of ultimate starvation.

Out of that same harbor for the last three months half a hundred huge ships, weighed down with grain, have gone forth to feed and nourish the world.

There are now 92,000,000 of us where there were but 103 in 1620. Out of virgin soil of the westward, the products of this year's agricultural products worth $8,000,000,000 a record never before attained by any single nation in the world in any one year.

Our national wealth has grown from $750,000,000 in 1791 to the prodigious sum of $125,000,000 on January 1st last—twice that of the United Kingdom of Great Britain, Scotland and Ireland and three times that of either France or Germany, our three closest competitors. Despite our enormous growth in population we now have a per capita capital of $1,859 where we had but $193 in 1791. We are the world's greatest manufacturers as well as its most extensive and richest agriculturalists. We mine more coal and extract more gold, silver and copper, and iron out of the ground than any two countries in the universe. We are prosperous beyond the most extravagant picture ever painted in fancy by fertile human imagination. Unable to profitably employ all our own capital at home, we use our surplus millions to finance tobacco plantations in Porto Rico and the Philippines, sugar plantations in Cuba, coffee plantations in Brazil and rubber plantations in British Guiana and thus add to our rapidly accumulating revenue.

Favored by nature, blessed by Providence, admired by the world, everybody's friend nobody's avowed enemy, endowed with marvelous physical vigor, animated by such enterprise as no other nation has ever shown, flattered and toasted the earth over, we should be supremely happy. But we ain't.

We fret and fume because a dyspeptic railroad president talks pessimistically of the future, and if he was inspired or had any better opportunity of foreseeing things in advance of their advent than the rest of the community who make no pretense to being prescient.

Pessimism never declared a dividend. I built two houses where there was one before. Like the flea on the dog the pessimist is inevitable. While his persistent propensity of reminding us of his presence may irritate or interestingly emphasized when all is said and done, he cuts little ice. How literally true this is was never more forcibly or interestingly emphasized than in the figures of our national material pre-eminence now available. He indeed must be a queer American who in the contemplation of the stupendous development of his country and its epochal achievements does not feel a sense of patriotic exaltation as he reads and studies the significance of the record of its growth and transcending accomplishments since that intrepid little band of pilgrims braved the terrors of the sea to plant their standard on our then inhospitable shores.

Representative Hughes, of West Virginia, said in Washington on the 14th inst. that J. C. Mayo, of Kentucky, has expressed his confidence that he would be chosen Senator from Kentucky.—Bugle Herald.
